Intellectual Property

Aylo continues to drive the state of technology forward, developing industry-leading solutions enabling faster, more efficient delivery of content every second to millions of customers worldwide. Therefore, we strive to protect our intellectual property rights including but not limited to, trademarks, patents, and copyright. This means that we do not grant you or any third party the license to use the intellectual property rights on our website.

Trademark: All marks, brands, names, logos, emblems, class, and designs on our Website are subject to trademark rights of Aylo. We will consider any authorized use of our trademark as an infringement.

Copyright: © Aylo. All texts, graphics, images, designs, animations, and other related files on our Website are subject to copyright. These files cannot be copied, modified, altered, or reposted on any online or offline platform either for distribution or commercial use.

Warranties

There is no express or implied warranty of any kind including, fitness of purpose, non-infringement of any third-party rights, or implied warranties of merchantability for the information provided. The information on our Website although we believed to be true and accurate, is provided “as is” and may include errors or inaccuracies.

Liability

Except for instances of gross negligence and misconduct, Aylo shall not be liable to any persons or individuals for any special, indirect, or consequential damages pertaining to our Website. We are not liable for any third-party links on our website. Kindly go through the terms and conditions of these third-party websites before use.

Changes to our Terms of Use

We may modify our terms of use from time to time. You are expected to periodically review the most up-to-date version found at the Terms of Use page, so you are aware of any changes we make. If we change anything in our terms of use, the date of change will be reflected in the “last modified date”.
